Philosophy (from Greek $\phi\lambda\sigma\sigma\phi\alpha$, philosophia, literally "love of wisdom") is the study of general and fundamental problems concerning matters such as existence, knowledge, values, reason, mind, and language. The term was probably coined by Pythagoras (c. 570–495 BCE). Philosophical methods include questioning, critical discussion, rational argument, and systematic presentation.

Logic (from the Ancient Greek: $\lambda\omicron\gamma\acute{\iota}\kappa\omicron\varsigma$, translit. logiká, —), is the systematic study of the form of valid inference, and the most general laws of truth. A valid inference is one where there is a specific relation of logical support between the assumptions of the inference and its conclusion. In ordinary discourse, inferences may be signified by words such as therefore, hence, ergo, and so on.

First-order logic with term-formers that can bind names. So we can axiomatise things like forall or lambda, or finitely axiomatise arithmetic. This gives PNL much of the expressive power of higher-order logic: but terms, derivations and models of PNL are first-order and the logic seems to strike a good balance between expressivity and simplicity.

It's taken 21 months, four professors, and three associate/assistant professors, and THIS is the best they could come up with? The printed version listed no author (the pdf has been updated with John Cooks name*) yet wears the logo of the University of Western Australia (UWA), which will embarrass that university as word spreads of the intellectual weakness of their "Guide".
