In organizational behavior and industrial and organizational psychology, organizational commitment is an individual's psychological attachment to the organization. The basis behind many of these studies was to find ways to improve how workers feel about their jobs so that these workers would become more committed to their organizations.

As shown in Fig. 1, organizational adaptability is characterized by a core tension between "the need to innovate" and "the need to produce" (Tushman and O'Reilly, 1996). This tension is labeled differently depending on the perspective it comes from (e.g., strategy, OT, entrepreneurship, learning). Adaptability occurs in the interface between these tensions, and is associated with "new ...

Organizational storytelling is a concept in management and organization studies. It recognises the special place of narration in human communication, making narration "the foundation of discursive thought and the possibility of acting in common." This follows the narrative paradigm, a view of human communication based on the conception of persons as homo narrans.
